Earthy Browns

Browns natural and nurturing qualities are appealing, they feel both warm and earthy which in turn makes us feel cozy. Designers are also describing “quiet luxury brown” as the new neutral. We’re seeing an increase in brown being worked into contemporary interiors in a wide variety of shades.

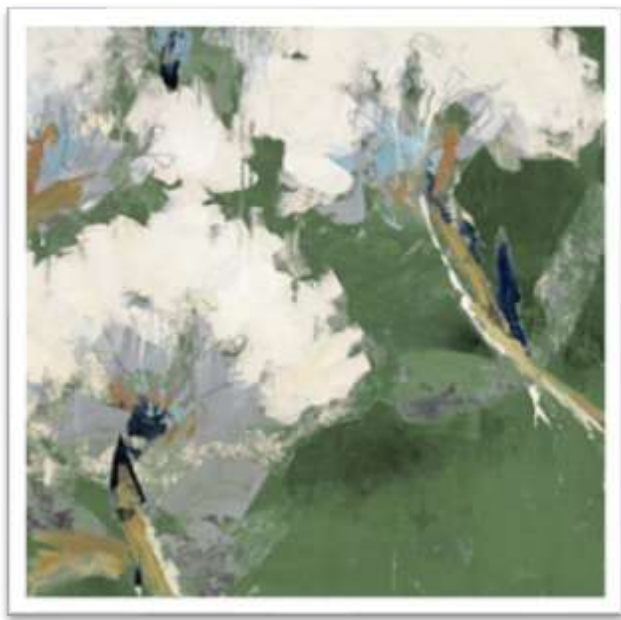

Rich Greens

Rich Greens are making waves! Trends have continued to shift away from cooler gray tones toward warmer color palettes found in nature giving green it's moment in the sun. It's cozy neutral complement the outdoor landscape and bring what's outside the window in.

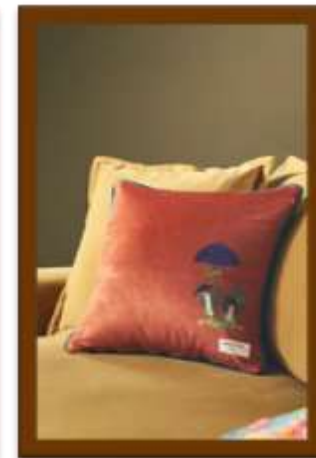

Butter Yellow

Butter yellow is gaining traction as the season's en vogue color, highlighting its optimistic charm.

This creamy shade is serving as a subtle mood booster! A bolder hue that can act as a neutral is also making a comeback. Marigold is being used for statement hues in smaller spaces to make a big impression.

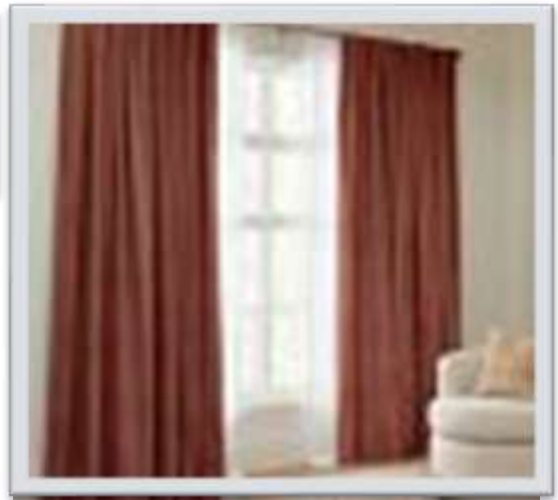

Terra-Cotta

Terra-cotta brings a rich, earthy that can also be reminiscent of an island resort allowing you to bring a glimmer of vacation bliss to every day . It creates warmth in a space and with that calm and serenity many are craving.

Alluring Pinks

Sophisticated shades of pink are making their way into the realm of contemporary style. Hot pink is still holding strong although softer tones with hints of mauve and brown are also having their moment. Gone are the days that it's only for girls, today's pinks are for all spaces!
